

Are you fascinated by Arctic and Greenlandic living and tradition?
Are you travelling to the Arctic or do you just dream about it?

Then this may be something for you: ARCTIC NATURE AND SOCIETY

A new arctic course OPEN FOR ALL

At the University of Copenhagen in April, May and June 2018.

Arctic Nature and Society

The aim of this course is to provide a broad introduction to the natural and cultural history and evolution of the Arctic combined with a modern perspective on arctic societies and their livelihood. During the course we will explore topics and case studies within biology, geology, geography, archaeology, and anthropology, as well as the region's modern history, political development and options for the future.

Among the teacher you will find Eske Willerslev, Nuka Godtfredsen, Minik Rosing, Katherine Richardson, Aviaja Haubtmann, Bo Elberling, Kurt H. Kjær, Frank Sejersen, Nina Lundholm, Nils Wang, Lars Stemmerik, Bjarne Grønnow and many others with insight and overview.

Read more →

Update your qualifications with a course at the University of Copenhagen

Arctic Nature and Society is offered in accordance with the rules governing part-time education. This means that anybody can apply to attend the course subject that fulfills the admission requirements and subject to availability, and providing you pay the tuition fees.

Read more →

Questions

Kirsten Wivel-Snejbjerg

Secretary of Study

Natural History Museum of Denmark

University of Copenhagen

Phone +45 35331431

E-mail kws@snm.ku.dk

NATURAL HISTORY MUSEUM OF DENMARK
UNIVERSITY OF COPENHAGEN

