Sámi allaskuvla/Sámi University of Applied Sciences

was established November 1st, 1989, as a result of a long time desire within the Sámi community to have a teacher education with emphasis on the Sámi learning view, forms of teaching and Sámi traditional teaching, which is adapted to the current and future needs. Later the goal expanded to offer other higher-level education in Sámi language in a Sámi-language environment. An independent Sámi teaching institution also gave the Sámi community the opportunity to develop and offer studies that meet the needs of the Sámi community across borders. Most of our studies are in North Sámi language, but we also offer some few courses for students who do not speak the Sámi language. Among others, Master in Sámi Journalism from an Indigenous Perspective.
